multiculturalism is regarded as a key feature of canada s national identity yet despite an increasingly diverse population racialized canadians are systematically excluded from full participation in society through personal and structural forms of racism and discrimination race and anti racism in canada provides readers with a critical examination of how racism permeates canadian society and articulates the complex ways to bring about equity and inclusion both individual and systemically a selection of some of the best writing and thinking on the subject of racism in canada this book brings together contributions from academic and government sectors to analyze the nature and extent of racism in canada approaches ranging from sociology cultural anthropology demography and psychology are represented comprises essays discusses race relations beginning in the mid 18th century and continuing to the mid 1980s asserts that racial discrimination is part of canadian history and part of the capitalist economic system includes case studies of indigenous people chinese and japanese immigrants and blacks this outstanding collection examines the complex and disturbing history of immigration and racism in canada major themes include native non native contact migration and settlement in the nineteenth century immigrant workers and radicalism human rights internment during wwii and racism of the present day the readings are divided into five cohesive sections natives and newcomers in early canada space and racialized communities dangerous others non citizens and the state gate keeping enemies without and within the post war era new rights and new racisms this book is destined to make its mark in history departments across the country and will also be of interest to students and researchers in canadian studies sociology demography political science and geography the chapters in this books seeks to answer the questions to what extent does racism continue to inform and structure how are institutions operate today what is the social meaning of race in contemporary canadian society and what is the most effective way to combat racism in all its forms the contributores analyze the conditions that give rise to racism the extent to which racism permeates social institutions how groups of people have organized against racism and the ways racism is linked to class gender and ethnicity an exploration of racism throughout canada s history including prejudice and discrimination some of it officially sanctioned the book also traces the experience and contributions of various ethnic groups in canada explaining the racism against which they struggled backhouse presents detailed narratives of six court cases each giving evidence of blatant racism created and enforced through law book jacket in acknowledging the possibility that as the world changes so too does racism this book argues that racism is not disappearing despite claims of living in a post racial and multicultural world to the contrary racisms persist by transforming into different forms whose intent or effects remain the same to deny and disallow as well as to exclude and exploit racisms in a multicultural canada is organized around the assumption that race is not simply a set of categories and that racism is not just a collection of individuals with bad attitudes rather racism is as much a matter of interests as of attitudes of property as of prejudice of structural advantage as of personal failing of whiteness as of the other of discourse as of discrimination and of unequal power relations as of bigotry this multi dimensionality of racism complicates the challenge of formulating anti racism and anti colonialist strategies capable of addressing it employing a critical framework that puts politics and power at the centre of analysis this book focuses on why racisms proliferate how they work in contemporary societies and how the way we think and talk about racism changes over time specifically it examines the working of contemporary racisms in a multicultural canada that claims to abide by principles of multiculturalism and a commitment to a post racial society discusses the ideals and realities of eliminating racism equality in employment canadian attitudes toward racism minorities and the justice system the media housing the promise of equality and new directions this is the book that many of us in the field of race scholarship have been waiting for minelle mahtani university of toronto scarborough this multidisciplinary volume brings together scholars and activists to examine expressions of racism in contemporary policy areas including education labour immigration media and urban planning while anti racist struggles during the twentieth century were largely pitched against overt forms of racism e g pogroms genocide segregation apartheid and ethnic cleansing it has become increasingly apparent that there are other less visible forms of racism these subtler incarnations are of special interest to the contributors the intent of race racialization and antiracism in canada and beyond is to probe systemic forms of racism as well as to suggest strategies for addressing them the collection is organized by themes pertinent to political and social expressions of racism in canada and the wider world such as the state and its mediation of race education and the perpetuation of racist marginalization and the role of the media the contributors argue that in order to effectively combat racism various methodological approaches are required approaches that are reflective of the diversity of the world we seek to understand this engaging new anthology brings together important selections that have informed debates and generated controversies about race and ethnicity from the nineteenth century onwards using an interdisciplinary approach the collection demonstrates and analyzes a transition from canada s early focus on ethnicity to the current proliferation of sophisticated analyses of race as a concept resistances to traditional thinking about race and ethnicity by academics and activist communities are also discussed the text demonstrates that despite claims of race neutrality as a preferred ideal canada is actually a racialized society race remains a key variable in influencing people s identities experiences and outcomes racism eh is the first publication that examines racism within the broad canadian context this anthology brings together some of the visionaries who are seeking to illuminate the topics of race and racism in canada through the analysis of historical and contemporary issues which address race and racism as both material and psychic phenomena fundamentally interdisciplinary in nature this text will be an invaluable resource for undergraduate and graduate students academics studying or practicing within the humanities and the social sciences and anyone seeking information on what has been a little explored and poorly understood canadian issue pub desc the mission statements and recruitment campaigns for modern canadian universities promote diverse and enlightened communities racism in the canadian university questions this idea by examining the ways in which the institutional culture of the academy privileges whiteness and anglo eurocentric ways of knowing often denied and dismissed in practice as well as policy the various forms of racism still persist in the academy this collection informed by critical theory personal experience and empirical research scrutinizes both historical and contemporary manifestations of racism in canadian academic institutions finding in these communities a deep rift between how racism is imagined and how it is lived with equal emphasis on scholarship and personal perspectives racism in the canadian university is an important look at how racial minority faculty and students continue to engage in a daily struggle for safe inclusive spaces in classrooms and among peers colleagues and administrators contending that cultural producion gives voice to racism the authors anthropologists carol tator and frances henry and attorney winston mattis here examine how six controversial canadian cultural events have given rise to a newly empowered radical or critical multiculturalism
